DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 9/2/08 has been entered.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments filed 9/2/08 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues the present invention recites a unitary device as compared to the two-piece construction of Gipson. Gipson does provide a two-piece construction, but the device as a whole when assembled presents a unitary structure (Figure 2). Applicant further argues the belt of Gipson is a single piece item with no folded or nested portion. However, it is noted that the features upon which applicant relies (i.e., a single piece item) are not recited in the rejected claim(s). What is recited is "two separate semi-belt portions", not two separate semi-belt pieces. A single piece can have two separate portions. Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993). As to the limitation of the folded or nested portions, the claim requires the semi-belt portions being nested with respect to each other for packaging and shipping, and storage, and the being unfolded by the user. Therefore, the nested and folded portions occur when in storage and are a function of use. The semi-belt portions of Gipson are capable of being folded and nested for storage.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claim 8 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Gipson USPN 5445628. Gipson discloses a unitary disposable incontinence device in that the entire structure presents a unitary device as shown in Figure 2. The device comprises a pad having integral front and back portions, respectively depending from a back border and a belt 12 integral with the back border of the pad, the belt being disposed exteriorly of the pad (Figure 2). The belt includes two separate semi-belt portions (Figure 2 shows left and right sides of belt 12). Figure 3 shows the semi belts overlapped, which provides a folded portion. The limitations of nested and folded portions occur when in storage and are a function of use. The semi-belt portions of Gipson are capable of being folded and nested for storage. The separate semi-belt portions have respective end portions and fastening means between the respective end portions provided by receiving material disposed on the belts, which comprises openings and complementary hook material (points) that fit into the openings (. col. 3, lines 47-55; col. 4, lines 3-8).
